MESSAGE

I am happy to learn that H.P Dental College and Hospital, Shimla is launching its website. I congratulate the management and students for this achievement.

This is an era of Information Technology, where every sphere of our daily life has been proliferated by the internet, and it has now become a very important part of our normal life. From small business to large corporate to hospitals and educational institutions, all these have undergone fast changes and are now online to keep up with a high tech fast moving digital world. Therefore, having own website has become essential, especially for institutions like Dental College and Hospital.

I am hopeful, this facility will help the institution in providing information regarding various dental courses being offered besides facilities available in the hospital.

Moreover, the online presence of this institution will also serve teachers and staff, former alumni, parents and current students as well.
